face a detention hearing, a government official said.
They were arrested "on the basis of a request from the Philippine government for them to face plunder charges filed against them in the Philippines," Assistant Ombudsman Mark Jalandoni said.

Jalandoni said the government had so far received no official communication from the US government on the arrests.
"But we have confirmed that they were arrested in the US," he said.
Garcia, his wife and three sons have been charged with plunder for allegedly amassing more than P303 million in unexplained wealth during Garcia's active service in the military.

Garcia was convicted on perjury charges late last month for misdeclaring his assets in 2000. He is in jail while on trial for plunder.

Clarita and her three sons had been at large since the plunder case was filed in 2005. Unlike the retired general, they are US citizens, US federal officials told the Detroit News.

The Detroit News said the arrest warrants for Clarita and Timothy Mark were made on the basis of an extradition request from the Philippine government for plunder committed in Quezon City between 1993 and 2004.

a court filing from Assistant US Attorney John O'Brien, the paper said "the money and other benefits obtained by the defendants resulted from the award of contracts or other government projects by Maj. Gen. Garcia and taking undue advantage of his official position."
