Mikey: Let's have Charter change after 2010

 an "emergency rule" with stage-managed explosions and terror attacks to justify the situation. In case all the above proved futile or non-viable, then the 2010 elections would take place, he said. But even in this eventuality,

Cruz said there still remains a reserved option—still well in line with the "Fixation of Ruling." Cruz painted the scenario that there would be failure of elections in 2010 due to accusations of cheating borne out of unfamiliarity with the modernized voting method. "Result: Big accusations and loud counter-accusations of cheating—much more fierce and violent than those previously staged on the occasion of all previous manual elections. Recourse: Proclamation of the failure of election," Cruz said. "Conclusion: Satisfaction of the fixation to continue ruling. Neat!" he added. ■

Ateneo lines up special events to mark sesquicentennial

 off its sesquicentennial year celebration. The Sesquicentennial Kick-off Mass at the Manila Cathedral will have His Eminence Gaudencio Cardinal Rosales, Archbishop of Manila, as main celebrant. It will be followed by a grand motorcade that will pass through the Ateneo campuses—Intramuros, Padre Faura, Salcedo and Rockwell in Makati, Ateneo School of Medicine and Public Health in Pasig and finally, Loyola Heights, in Quezon City—to symbolically retrace Ateneo's journey from its beginnings as a school for boys in Intramuros to its present stature as a world-class university. On June 12, the very Rev. Fr. Adolfo Nicolas, SJ, Superior General of the Society of Jesus returns to the Ateneo to celebrate Mass in honor of St. Ignatius, founder of the Society of Jesus at the Ateneo High School Covered Courts. December is jam-packed with special events. There will be a Grand Sesquicentennial Anniversary Mass at the Church of the Gesu on Dec. 10. Dec. 12 is made special for alumni through the grand alumni homecoming Mass, One Big Night and grand alumni homecoming at the Ateneo Loyola Heights campus. Also in December, Gawad Kalinga-Ateneo will spearhead the GK SesquicentennialBuild, a grand house-build for the much-anticipated Sesquicentennial Village. Two books will be launched this year. Fr Jose Arcilla, SJ's coffee table picture book The Ateneo Way. 150 years in May, and 150 Year in the Life of the Nation, produced by the Loyola Schools Department of History, in December. Advanced orders and reservations can be made for these books and for limited-edition memorabilia, including a replica of the Immaculate Conception statue from the Intramuros campus rendered by well-known artist Sajid Imao, Sesquicentennial Swatch watches, car plates, and medals accompanied by a Certificate of Authenticity from the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas. Expect more celebrations as the Blue Eagle Gym, Ateneo's oldest structure built in 1949, turns 60 years old in June and a modern, five-story Rizal Library building is completed in November. For a detailed calendar of sesquicentennial events, please visit <http://150.ateneo.edu> or contact the Office of University Development and Alumni Relations at 426-6001, local 4081 to 4094, or e-mail address 150@ateneo.edu. You may also visit the OUDAR at Alingal Hall, across from Eliaz Residence Hall in the Loyola Heights campus. This book is also available at the Asian Journal offices. Please call Gemma Fabro at (213) 250-9797 or Ria Fabro at (213) 291-8278 for books reservations. ■
