A NEW CAREER IN JUST 10 WEEKS Something to smile about

AS THE RECESSION marches on, those seeking a career that's got promise, permanence and purpose know to turn to the medical and dental fields. Careers in dentistry offer financial stability, job security, great working hours, and membership in one of the most prestigious professions today.

One of the fastest ways to get into the dental profession is through a program offered by Encino-based Valley School for Dental Assisting. The school offers a 10-week course taught by a dentist in a dental office where a limited number of students receive comprehensive instruction and hands on training. The streamlined course is designed to get students job-ready for an in-demand career as a dental assistant.

"Our focus is on specialized instruction and training, to allow students to develop skills needed to succeed in today's demanding marketplace", said Dr. Katie Karzen, the school's Director.

Valley School of Dental Assisting provides a path into one of fastest growing fields of employment. Job prospects are excellent, according to the US Department of Labor Statistics, which expects Dental Assisting careers to be among the fastest growing occupations through the next ten years.

Dental Assistants earn $15 - $25 plus per hour and work side-by-side with dentists in clinics, hospitals, state and local public health departments. They are, in effect, the dentists' extra pair of hands. Tasks include pre-assessing the needs of a procedure, preparing dental equipment and instruments, mixing material, sterilizing dental instruments, developing dental X-rays, and charting to name a few. Other extended duties include dental lab work, dental record keeping, taking impressions, making temporary crowns, giving post-op instructions, and educating patients on oral health.

The Valley School for Dental Assisting program offers an alternative to typical dental assisting educational programs that take an average of 7 to 10 months to complete and cost anywhere from ten to fifteen thousand in tuition fees.

Tuition fee for this all-inclusive program is $3,495.00. The tuition includes the hands-on training, certifications in Dental Assisting, CPR and Radiation, class materials and supplies and job placement assistance. Tuition financing is available to those who qualify.

Equipping each student with the basic skills necessary to enter the workplace in a relatively short amount of time is the school's focus.

To insure quality education and personal attention, Valley School for Dental Assisting limits the size of its classes to a maximum of ten students per course. Saturday and evening classes are offered for the convenience of students. The school is located in Encino, California and was founded by Dr. Katie Karzen, a graduate of the University of Southern California School of Dentistry. Dr. Karzen has been in practice for 15 years and is an active member of the community.

Liquid Facelift –the revolutionary beauty solution from Allure Cosmetic

AS PEOPLE GROW OLDER, their faces begin to lose collagen and elastin, which leads to the formation of wrinkles, creases, and folds. As early as 30 years old, some men and women notice the start of sagging facial features. For those who have lost fat in the face and want to regain the fullness that they had in their youth, Allure Cosmetic Solutions is offering the Liquid Face Lift.

A non-surgical procedure, the Liquid Face Lift uses injection techniques to fill in or replace the fullness that's been lost through the years. Natural, curved facial contours are restored; wrinkles, creases and folds are reduced; facial features are gently lifted.

Dr. Brian Machida of Allure Cosmetic Solutions says that among his numerous, multi-racial clients, more and more Filipinos prefer the liquid face lift over surgical face lifts. "There are no side effects to the procedure which is done three times, six weeks apart," said Dr. Machida. "We inject dermal fillers that stimulate your body's own collagen, providing a lift to various facial features. Your face looks fuller and younger; no more sagging," he added.

Many patients of Allure who have had a liquid face lift procedures say that they received compliments on their appearance without others knowing that they have done anything. In some instances, the results can be so uplifting that they change an individual's life.

With the proliferation of beauty/aesthetic clinics today, it is important that you choose one that will give you the best value for your money. After all, you only have one face, one body –so, you can't afford to have mistakes. No wonder, more people go to Allure Cosmetic Solutions because they know Dr. Brian Machida is one of the best in his field. Voted one of America's Top Physicians in 2005 by the Consumer Research Council of America Board Certifications, Dr. Machida is also the recipient of the AMA Physician's Recognition Award for Continuing Education, the John Orlando Roe Award for Clinical Research in Facial Plastic Surgery and the Outstanding Young Men Award in America. He also has an outstanding educational background. An associate clinical professor at the USC School of Medicine, Dr. Machida graduated summa cum laude with a BS Degree at the UC Berkeley and earned his Doctor of Medicine degree from the University of Southern California. As a licensed aesthetic physician and surgeon, Dr. Machida aims to provide the utmost fulfillment and satisfaction to people who need beauty enhancements.
