

Love, Intrigue and Unity: It's all in the family

BY MONET LU

THIS WEEK, I take a break from writing about celebrities, our leading FilAm personalities and beauty tips by focusing on a more personal subject. This time I want to share wonderful things that I've rediscovered by renewing ties with family around me. This is a tribute to them and to where I came from.

Everyone who belongs to a family knows that any drama within a clan can be very complicated. Sometimes, hindi magkasundo ang mga mag-anak but when everything is said and done, they're the ones who are there to support you—whether you're down on your knees or experiencing a triumphant moment.

Hindi talaga maiwasan ang tampuhan. Within my own family, we naturally have issues with each other. We have arguments and differences of opinion. There are times we don't speak for weeks.

But a recent health scare on one family member really served as an eye-opener for everyone. It's interesting how a crisis can bring people closer together.

Earlier this week, the Lus had a family reunion at the park where we reminisced about our childhood growing up in Marikina, Philippines.

My sisters based in Hawaii and Canada came all the way to spend quality time with the family. It felt really nice.

We recalled our early days in Marikina in a household of 13 members, headed by a strict Chinese father.

Everything was going great for us until that fateful day when our grocery store—the family's sole livelihood—and our house burned to the ground.

I can still remember feeling so helpless as I watched the raging flames devour the family property. It was heart-breaking.

My parents had to start from scratch while taking care of 11 children, me being the 7th.

As a teenager, natuto akong magbanat ng buto. I quit high school to pursue dressmaking and fashion design.

I was 17 years old when I started sewing prom dresses, bridal gowns and Santacruzian costumes for Quality time with the Lus my classmates.

Through dressmaking, I discovered my passion for hairstyling and beauty.

I would practice different hairstyles on tinderas sa palengke as well as my sisters, sometimes charging three pesos but most of the time, my service was free. I learned the craft by doing as much as I could.

Being a precocious 17-year-old, I had moments when I behaved badly. This is why I was kicked out of the family home.

It was another life lesson learned. I became independent and resilient. I learned how to work hard to prove to myself and my parents that I can be successful on my own.

At 24, I was able to put up three salons. When the opportunity came to relocate to Los Angeles, California, I took it because I wanted to challenge myself.

After years of challenges, hardships, pain, and hard work, I have now reached the present.

All through it all, the biggest factor that drove me to always work hard was my loved ones; my family.

Warts and all, our family accepts us for who we are. I've realized that what I have considered tragedies in my life in the past have also become the catalyst for great changes.

Just like what my mom used to say, "Kung saan ka nadapa, dun ka rin babangon."

God bless our families. May our love for each other keep us close always.
