Lovers' rigodon

Angel Locsin

MANILA - Angel Locsin is all agog about her upcoming teleserye, Only You, with Sam Milby and Diether Ocampo.

Dance track

Melvin Marfil, vocalist of my all-time fave band True Faith, has collaborated with DJ/producer Brian Cua with a fabulous dance track, World Rushing In. Brian submitted it to Defected Records Global Competition. Please support Medwin by going to the website <http://www.defected.com/yourmusic/trackpage.php?track=118> and rate the track. I gave it 5 stars. Kudos, Med, for outdoing yourself once again!

Secret gift

Knowing how much Ogie Alcasid spoils his honey Regine Velasquez, I teased him: "I wonder how expensive your birthday gift for Reg is this year?"

He blushed and replied, "Secret na lang." After three weeks of being apart since Regine was abroad for a concert tour, the couple cried when they saw each other again. No place can be home for Regine without Ogie there. They live inside each other's hearts. ■

The Pinoy version of the hit Korean series premieres April 27 on ABS-CBN. "I'm excited because it's been nine months na wala akong TV show, puro movies," said Angel.

How's her working relationship with Sam? "Medyo nagtampo si Sam when I referred to him as little boy," she revealed. "What I meant by that was, napakatotoo ng mga kilos niya. It's the way he offers me food and shows me his gadgets. I find it so cute. 'Yun ang ibig kong sabihin na little boy siya. 'Kala niya it meant immature. Of course not!"

How about Diet? "At first I felt awkward kasi medyo senior siya sa akin. Baka hindi ko mahiritan," she said. "But when we warmed up, I found out how fun he is to be with and sensible kausap."

What a coincidence that Gel's ex, Oyo Boy Sotto, and Diet's ex, Kristine Hermosa, are now together. By a twist of fate and switch of networks, their "only you's" have made a rigodon.

Survivor

Paolo Bediones had a "jolting" experience recently. His Facebook status reads: "Mental Note - The laws of Physics are still in effect and the human body remains to be a conductor of electricity. Thank goodness it was just 220 volts!"

The Survivor Philippines host is truly a survivor in more ways than one.

US director shoots...

thanks to the "excellent, enthusiastic production staff."

The biggest challenge was the heat, he said. "We must have used 49 umbrellas! We shot early, or late, in the day."

Fortunately, most of the scenes were set near Loboc River, "where we could often cool off with a swim."

On the first day of shoot, however, Fitzharris lost a camera to the Bohol sea.

"The boat suddenly tipped and the cameraman, tripod and camera fell into the water," he recalled.

Fitzharris was also impressed with Gamboa. "He gave his all in each scene. He came up with nice ad-libs that we included in the movie."

But he said the film's true star is Bohol. "It's a beautiful destination," he said. "So this film would appeal to people in the US and Europe where winters are cold and dark."

Fitzharris hopes to distribute the film in the US and the Philippines and enter it in a major film festival.

His next film will also feature Filipinos. "It's a comedy about rural Americans — hicks or rednecks — who marry Filipinas," he said, "a light-hearted look at the clash of cultures." ■
