

Living up to her song

Yeng Constantino practises what she preaches in her song Hawak Kamay.

MANILA—Yeng Constantino continues to live up to her first hit song Hawak Kamay as she involves herself in helping people through projects with a cause such as the upcoming event of Red Cross in partnership with Star Records.

Yeng, together with Erik Santos and Toni Gonzaga, sang the upbeat theme song of Red Cross, Bagong Umaga. According to Star Records and Gwendolyn Pang, secretary general of the Philippine National Red Cross, Yeng was chosen not only because of her talent but also because she has been a star volunteer of Red Cross since 2006.

Under Star Records, Bagong Umaga is included in the album titled I Move, I Give, I Love meant for the 150th anniversary of Red Cross worldwide. The album is composed of inspirational songs performed by different artists. "Proceeds of the album will go to Red Cross," shares Annabelle Regalado-Borja, managing director of Star Records.

All the hard work for the project will culminate in the Red Cross' big event which will happen on June 24 wherein more than a night of music will happen. Red Cross aims to set the largest human formation of the Red Cross logo in the Guinness. (Philstar.com)
